Steffens says there could be another surge of thunderstorms next week. But most of the rain won't be a problem, says Steffens. He notes that during the summer, Austin and some of its suburbs get only 10 to 15 centimetres of rain a year on average.

What's new:

"So what are you gonna wear?" "You do realize you don't really give a fuck, right?" "Uh... Mom, can you help me pick out an outfit?" "You probably won't have to wear as much as I think. We can make it mod, casual, formal and a little bit of both. Today it's all about the layers. I got a list of clothes but I want you to pick everything. You are the costume designer. Besides, the girl who doesn't wear hats is... well, dumb." "I'm going to dress me in an outfit that is a nod to the pantsuit. Sexy biker. I'd be the best dressed chick in the place. I'll wear scarfs, hat, boots, gloves, just like she does." "Have fun. I'll be watching your thread, in case you need my... opinion." "Hm."

"Sometimes, I mean, I love you, I just wish you could just say that word out loud." "It's only a question. And we'll never use those exact words in those exact sentences." "That's not a question."

"A daed said it was important. He's always trying to get me to use the proper prej... prej... prej... whatever the word is. But I just can't get it right."

"Exactly. That's the right word. And thank you for reminding me of it. You are such a help!" "I'm still a little weirded out that you often put up with me. Like, I'm not used to being around this much of your crazy. It's almost like having a sister, only, she's a little bit crazy." "As long as we know the pretend sister is there for us, we can pretend she's not." "I know I can do that. I know, I know, I know. Will you do me a favor?" "I can do anything, sweetie, as long as it's a prej-" "I'd like to be able to work up a list of the things I think are covered."

"I guess that makes sense. What makes sense?"

"When you look at me and look at the tech I'm logged into, you're going to see me wearing a hat. Gloves maybe." "
